Grass Valley Parents Hear Of Son's Death

GRASS VALLEY: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stephens, who live west of this city on the Grass Valley-Auburn Highway, yesterday received a message that their son, J. Stephens, had been recovered from an Alaskan lake and that body would be shipped home for funeral services in the Hooper and Weaver Mortuary.

Stephens, who was employed by one of the federal agencies in surveying and civil engineering, was a plane passenger. The plane pilot was forced to make a landing in a lake in one of the northern wildernesses. The plane submerged and Stephens and another passenger were drowned. The pilot escaped. The accident occurred about a week ago.

The young man was graduated from the Grass Valley high school with the class of 1943. He was commissioned a naval ensign and served in the Pacific during the war. He was well known as an athlete and honor student here, playing on basketball and football teams. He only recently went to Alaska on the surveying job.

Hoffman was killed instantly, Coroner Alvah Hooper states, and his wife died in a few minutes, after station employes reached the scene. The plane circled to make the landing, then suddenly plunged to earth, according to spectators. The bodies are in the Truckee Funeral Home, awaiting word from relatives.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS FAVOR MULTIPLE LIST

NEVADA CITY: A greater service to property owners and the public can be rendered through multiple listings, was the keynote of the regular monthly meeting of the Nevada County Real Estate Board which was held in Deer Creek Inn, Nevada City, Mrs. Elsie Presley, President, presiding.

John Looser outlined rules and by-laws to be considered for adoption and a committee of seven members was appointed to report back at a special meeting of the board to be called shortly. David Maltman noted the outstanding success of "Multiple Listing" in all parts of the country.

A letter of congratulations was received by the president from the California Real Estate Association on the growth from 12 members in 1946 to 26 members at present, with still more applications to be acted upon. This is due in a large part to the active interest Mrs. Presley takes in her home community and the growing outside interest in Nevada County real estate.

Multiple listings, David Maltman said, will call attention of buyers throughout the country to the opportunities of Nevada County and since the local brokers understand and know Nevada County homes and ranches, this will increase sales, and offer a broader field to the property owner through the exchange groups.

SUPERVISORS TABLE PETITION ON ONE ARMED BANDIT ORDINANCE

NEVADA CITY: A large delegation of protestants, submitting petitions containing more than 4000 signatures yesterday appealed to the county board of supervisors to repeal the anti-slot machine ordinance which went into effect in Nevada County today.

Crofford Bridges, Grass Valley attorney, appeared as counsel for the delegation protesting the ordinance. His argument against the ordinance was that it goes a step farther than the state law banning slot mahines, in that it makes possession of free play machines, hitherto declared legal by the court, a misdemeanor. He contended the ordinance which makes even the storage of such machines in the county a misdemeanor, would work a hardship on many persons who, previously conducted a legitimate business and were now in possession of legitimate machines which were suddenly outlawed.

District Attorney Ward Sheldon stated that the ordinance was drawn as to make it easier for law enforcement officers to bring violators of the state law to justice.

"The ordinance," the district attorney said, "was brought forth, in my opinion, by the actions of those who are now protesting it."

An owner of a resort in the Donner Summit area declared that "the ordinance would not drive the slot machines out of Nevada County, but would drive them into back rooms and hidden places."

Former Judge L. Jones, for many years an enemy of illegal gambling, declared this statement was one of the most outstanding in defiance of the law he had ever heard."

Judge Jones declared that the operators of free play machines could not make money. He turned on Lou Moore, who has been active in arousing opposition to the new ordinance, and asked point blank: "Do the free play machines pay off?"

Moore replied: "Occasionally."

Miss Bernice Glasson, for many years head of the Red Cross chapter in Grass Valley and a member of the recently discharged grand jury, told of the reasons which moved the grand jury to seek elimination of slot machines under the state law. One mother complained that her children played slot machines in Grass Valley during the noon hour when they were permitted as amusement devices. One of the protestants against the slot machines ordinance retorted: "Children should be taught at home."

Supervisor Frank J. Rowe of Grass Valley, at the conclusion of the argument moved that the petitions be tabled. It was seconded by Supervisor J. J. Coughlan of Columbia Hill and carried, Warren Odell, chairman of the board, from Bridgeport, in closing intimated that since the board consisted of only five men it might be a good idea to put it to the vote of county electors.

SUPERVISORS ASK SPECIAL ELECTION DELAY

The Nevada County Board of Supervisors Tuesday passed a resolution against calling a special election for the purpose of electing a state senator to succeed Jerrold Seawell, from this district.

A telegram to this effect was dispatched to Governor Earl Warren this morning. The board unanimously asked the governor to postpone the election until the primary election in June, 1948. It was stated by one of the board members that Placer county is the only county in this senatorial district, asking that the date for an election be set, and is doing so only because they have a special county election coming up soon and hope to make the election for state senator co-incide with it.

Supervisor Frank Rowe stated that all counties are in the senatorial district have now expressed their opposition to a special election for state senator, excepting Placer, for the reason of expense. He said it would cost Nevada Conty between $12,000 and $14,000 to hold a special election.

FOURTH OF JULY

When the Founding Fathers of the Republic signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4th, 1776, there was scant time for philosophizing. A war was waiting to be fought and won.

But although they acted in times troubled and urgent, the signers were men of prophetic vision.

Thomas Jefferson's words, "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," were to prove deathless. More prosaically, Charles Carroll wrote that the republic's "protracted existence will depend on the morality, sobriety and industry of the people." And John Adams spoke of the "toil and blood and treasure that it will cost to maintain this Declaration and support and defend these states."

This year, as in each of the past 171, the necessity to protect our way of life still confronts us. Latent fires of disunity that once, during the Ciivil War, burst into violent conflagration, still smoulder with varying degrees of intensity wherever men's opinions differ. The fine and changiing line where government policing for community protection stops short of dangerous infringement on individual liberty still must be delineated and re-drawn. Unreasoning prejudices against groups, races and religons must constantly be held in check.

The fireworks are always fun, the oratory impressive, But the real meaning of Independence Day, lies each year not only in renewal of our devotion to liberty's cause, but in recognition of the ever present challenge foreseen by the Founding Fathers to liberty's continued existence.

FOURTH OF JULY

When the Founding Fathers of the Republic signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4th, 1776, there was scant time for philosophizing. A war was waiting to be fought and won.

But although they acted in times troubled and urgent, the signers were men of prophetic vision.

Thomas Jefferson's words, "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," were to prove deathless. More prosaically, Charles Carroll wrote that the republic's "protracted existence will depend on the morality, sobriety and industry of the people." And John Adams spoke of the "toil and blood and treasure that it will cost to maintain this Declaration and support and defend these states."

This year, as in each of the past 171, the necessity to protect our way of life still confronts us. Latent fires of disunity that once, during the Ciivil War, burst into violent conflagration, still smoulder with varying degrees of intensity wherever men's opinions differ. The fine and changiing line where government policing for community protection stops short of dangerous infringement on individual liberty still must be delineated and re-drawn. Unreasoning prejudices against groups, races and religons must constantly be held in check.

The fireworks are always fun, the oratory impressive, But the real meaning of Independence Day, lies each year not only in renewal of our devotion to liberty's cause, but in recognition of the ever present challenge foreseen by the Founding Fathers to liberty's continued existence.

FIRE WARNING

NEVADA CITY: Supervisor Guerdon Ellis of Tahoe National Forest has warned that the possession and firing of fireworks is strictly prohibited on forest and brush covered lands.
